NO GAS TAX INCREASE THIS SESSION

LEGISLATURE FAVOR BOOST OF FRANCHISE, EXCISE LEVIES

The Magic Word Economy Will Emblazon the Pages of History of the Eighty-Seventh General Assembly—Corporations are to Bear the Whole Load of Whatever Boosts Are Voted By the Body—Paring Down Expenditures Will Reduce the Nine Million Debt Load Carried By the State.

The Ohio General Assembly hammered away at its basic program Tuesday and wrought in its forges as a result thereof the word "economy."

Definite word came from caucuses of both houses that there would be no increase in present taxes other than those relating to corporations and public utilities. This means the gasoline tax will not be increased, and that several other modes of obtaining revenue, which had been proposed for consideration, will be scrapped.

The taxes that are to be increased are the corporation franchise tax and the excise tax on the earnings of public utilities. From these increases the legislature expects to obtain for the 18 months' period beginning July 1, 1927, and ending January 1, 1929, a total of $5,000,000.

Facing thus the problem of finding at least $7,000,000 more for the period the majority party, in caucus determined on a readjustment of the distribution of the gasoline tax and the automobile license tax to provide $4,000,000. The other $3,000,000 is to come from balances in rotary funds.

In this manner is the expected deficit of $9,000,000 to be cared for.

Floor Leader Chester C. Bolton, of the senate, and Martin S. Dodd, of the house, estimate that with the increase in taxation and the readjustment the state will have for the 18 months' period, and to provide for supplementary appropriations, a total of $53,000,000.

This $53,000,000 budget includes $45,000,000 from general revenue sources on the basis of present revenue laws; $4,000,000 from the increased corporation franchise taxes; $1,000,000 from increased excise taxes of public utilities, and $3,000,000 from balances in existing rotary funds.

Out of this must come first, the $9,000,000 deficit; $3,500,000 for supplementary appropriations and $2,500,000 for lapsing capital accounts, leaving a total of $38,000,000 for general revenue purposes exclusive of the highway department's needs. It has been decided to make the highway department take care of itself in the matter of construction by releasing part of the gasoline tax and license tag funds for construction purposes.

An amendment to the present gasoline tax and license tag laws is to be voted so that approximately $4,000,000 will be released for construction during the period.

This $4,000,000 will be used to match federal aid appropriations for the same period, making a total of $8,000,000 available for construction of roads between July 1, 1927 and January 1, 1929.

It is estimated that the state's share of the gasoline tax funds for the period will be $9,000,000 and that the license tags will yield a similar sum. Adding the $4,000,000 from the federal government, the highway department will have approximately $22,000,000 for construction and maintenance during the period, of which $8,000,000 must be used for construction.

Leaders believe that under this arrangement ample funds will be provided for the state government if economy is practiced.

In addition to adopting the foregoing basic financial program the senate caucus went on record in favor of a balanced budget. It also voted to give consideration to the recommendations of the reports of the special committees on penal institutions, highways and taxation. This does not mean, however, that the recommendations of those committees will be approved.

The first move looking to the speeding up of the legislative program came in the house Tuesday when the supplementary appropriation bill was passed by a vote of 131 to 0, after an appropriation of $5,000 for the purchase of automobiles for the Motor Vehicle division of the office of the secretary of state had been stricken out. The bill as amended carries total appropriations of $3,929,000. The measure now goes to the senate for approval.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At the meeting of the chamber of commerce held Tuesday evening the city auditor, Mrs. Ella Stout Lindsey, gave a detailed report of the city's finances for the past year. Her report showed that the job of auditor is not a sinecure, and that you must keep up your records to the moment. The auditor in fact runs the city government finances and is the business director. Mrs. Lindsey has proven herself competent and makes a most efficient official.

At the next meeting of the chamber of commerce, Howard Orr, president of the Winorr Canning company, will speak on "The Corn Borer" that threatens the destruction of corn crops in this vicinity. Mr. Orr, who has made a study of this animal will deliver a most interesting address.

QUAKER SHERIFF

Mrs. Frank Chase, a Quaker, is the sheriff of Kiowa county, Kan., the first woman to hold that position in the state. Her husband had been sheriff for four years and as he could not legally succeed himself the voters asked her to run for the office and elected her. She is the mother of four children.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Columbus—Less than 40 per cent of the students of Ohio State university have any church affiliation, a survey recently completed by the Rev. W. G. Price, secretary of the Campus Churches' association revealed. Fewer than 20 per cent of the men students attend church regularly, according to the survey.

Columbus—Charles S. Reynolds of Columbus, has been appointed editor and Louis T. Shulman of Dayton selected as business manager of the Makio, Ohio State university Annual published annually by the junior class. Fred E. Huls of Logan and Donald C. Trunbull, of Pomeroy, editor and business manager of the 1926 Makio, are serving in advisory capacities.

Athens—Edward F. Bolin, 50, former chief of police, committed suicide by drowning himself in water standing in an old tunnel in an abandoned brick yard near here. Bolin had suffered a nervous breakdown.

Xenia—W. F. Trader, 80, former mayor of Xenia died at his home here. He was secretary-treasurer of the Green county Law Library association which he helped to establish several years ago.

London—Fishing records were broken here when three local anglers landed 57 Rock bass in Walnut run.

Former Ex-sheriff Charles Wilson, caught 34 fish; former State Treasurer Chester E. Bryan landed 13 and A. H. Prine caught 10. Bryan, who has been fishing in Madison county streams for 30 years said that this is the first time he has ever landed Rock bass in February.

Pomeroy—A court order was issued here today to eject Frank Miller, crippled bootlegger from the Meigs county jail next week if he continues to refuse to leave. Officers say Miller was grieved over the court order. Miller said he has spent the most comfortable winter in years in the county jail and dreads the thought of discontinuing such a pleasant association. He was fined $100 in probate court for possessing liquor.

Cleveland—Mrs. Dorothy Lang, 30, was found dead in her automobile in the garage in the rear of her home Tuesday night. Death was attributed to carbon monoxide gas by police.

REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Thru the Circle Realty Co., Cliff and Ethel May Hanley sold their property known as the Fosnaugh home located on Mingo street to Henry Cramer, of Saltcreek township.

BANKS CLOSED SATURDAY.

The banks of this city will observe Lincoln's birthday Saturday, February 12. The banks will not be open in the evening.

AMERICAN WARSHIPS TO GO TO LISBON

Poortuguese Capital Surrounded by Revolutionists—Americans Fired Upon.

American war ships will be used if necessary to protect Americans endangered by the revolution in Portugal.

Actual dispatch of ships from the European squadron, however, will wait upon request of American minister Dearing at Lisbon, who has been driven from the American legation by gunfire.

American ships available for the purpose are; Cruiser Memphis at Alexandria, Egypt; flagship of Admiral Guy H. Burtage.

Destroyers Isherwood and Case at Tripoli; destroyers Toucey and Breck at Naples; destroyers, Sharkey and Lardner, at Ville France.

An undated cable received Wednesday by the state department from Minister Dearing at Lisbon reported "heavy fighting and constant sniping continues" adding that apparently the government has been victorious at Oporto and is slowly winning in Lisbon.

Dearing said that all Americans and the legation staff are safe so far as he has been able to ascertain.

It is believed this government will dispatch a warship to Portugal if Dearing reports Americans in danger.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Appointed Administratrix.

Mrs. Maggie D. Valentine was appointed administratrix of the estate of Walters Valentine, deceased. The estate is estimated to be worth $25,000.

Haynes Will Probated.

The will of the late Mrs. Rebecca Haynes has been probated. The testator leaves all her personal and real property to her sister, Mrs. Mary E. Cryder, with the exception of a bequest of $1,000 to her niece, Bessie Gray, now Mrs. W. Earl Warner, of Detroit, Michigan. Following the death of her sister, the property is devised to her brother, Senet Cryder. Miss Cryder was appointed executor, but declined. The will is dated June 5, 1893. Senet Cryder was appointed administrator with the will annexed.

Frank J. Bennett, Chris Meinfelder and F. L. Fickardt were appointed appraisers. The estate is estimated to be worth $10,220.

AMERICAN LEGION STARTS DRIVE FOR MEMBERS.

The local organization of the American Legion, Howard Hall Post No. 134 at their meeting Wednesday night, February 9, will make plans to start their drive for new members. The commander, Joseph M. Lynch, and Chief of Police Harry E. French, other officers are urging every member to be present at this meeting and lend a hand for this drive. Their motto, "Get Every Eligible Ex-Service Man" for a member will be the watchword and the local post will make a special effort to enroll every ex-service man. There is lots of work for the American Legion to do in Circleville and Pickaway county, but it takes membership to do it. Come out, Buddies, and help carry on.

KNOCKS ROBIN MYTH

Another myth has been exploded by Dr. Alexander Wetmore, president of the American Ornithologists' union and assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who says that scientists can only guess at the meaning of the arrival of the first robin in the spring, or the southward flight of geese across the late autumn sky. Doctor Wetmore has made special studies of bird life in the Salt Lake valley, the Big Horn basin in Wyoming, the pampas of Argentina, sand dunes of Buenos Aires and other vantage points in the Western hemisphere. He has recently completed a book of his personal observations and correlates them with findings of ornithologists for the last 200 years.

EASTERN TIME BILL

RECOMMENDED PASSED.

The Ohio senate judiciary committee Tuesday recommended for passage the bill, previously passed in the house, which would provide Eastern standard time as the legal time in Ohio, and another which the house has passed exempting pharmacists, doctors, dentists and newspaper men from jury service.

The committee also recommended for passage a bill permitting counties with several common pleas judges to designate one of the judges as chief justice of the court.

ANIMALS TO BE SILENCED BY ORDINANCE

Columbus Dogs, Cats and Roosters to be Reformed by City Council.

It may cost Columbus animal owners $5 per bark for their dogs, a society dowager $25 per pekinese yelp, or it may cost anywhere between $5 and $25 per cat scream, and if the family rooster, this summer, greets the new day's sun with a lusty crow, developing a state of insomnia in the neighbors, the owner can be fined so much per day in police court, if legislation introduced in city council by the Safety Director J. P. McCune and Chief of Police Harry E. French, Monday night, is favored by the councilmen.

After reading in the judiciary committee by Chairman John Lewis it was decided to table the ordinance for another week, scheduling a public hearing for next Monday night, at which animal owners could come to the defense of their pets.

According to Chief French the legislation is aimed principally at kennel owners and levies a fine upon owners of pets whose animals "raise a stench," or in any way disturb the "peace of mind and comfort" of the neighborhood.

In a letter to city council, Chief of Police French declared that the department received many complaints about "barking dogs, screaming cats and crowing roosters."

MISS HEISKELL SUCCUMBS TO HEART TROUBLE

Drops Dead This Morning in Basement While Fixing Furnace.

Miss Drusilla Heiskell, a music teacher, dropped dead Wednesday morning in the basement of her home in Williamsport, while firing the furnace.

The deceased had been suffering with heart trouble and it is presumed that this was the cause of her sudden demise. The deceased was the daughter of Daniel and Mary Paist Heiskell and was born at South Charleston.

The funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Clifford and Rev. Trout will officiate. Burial at South Charleston.

The deceased was an aunt of Clifford P. Heiskell and Roland P. Heiskell of this city.

ROBBERIES CON- TINUE AT SER- VICE STATIONS

Attendant Forced To Walk Several Blocks—Four Other Places Raided.

Columbus, Feb. 8.—Another filling station attendant last night was robbed of $30 by a burglar who forced him to leave the station and walk several blocks.

The robbery victim was Harold Sannin, 432½ South High street, attendant at the Excellent Oil Co. station, Essex and Lockwin Aves. After handing over the money from the cash drawer at the point of a gun, Mr. Sannin was accompanied by the bandit to Cleveland and Lockwin Aves., and ordered to proceed alone north in Cleveland Ave., he said.

Two Kroger grocery stores, one at 1343 North High street, where the bandits got $87.50, and the other at 46 South Washington Ave., where $70 was taken; the Atlantic and Pacific Tea store, 1567 Parsons Ave., from which $17.95 was taken, and the Pure Oil station at High street and First Ave., where $26 was taken from the attendant, were robbed yesterday.

Several radio sets were reported missing, in addition to the $130 previously reported stolen from Heaton's music store Sunday.

Police believe the robbers to be working individually, as no descriptions of the men on one job tally with those on another.

Character in Business

Character is playing more and more importance in business, both from the side of the management and the side of the employee. Once every effort was made to obtain efficiency. While efficiency is an end of business today, the realization of the need for character has come to be a foremost thought of corporation leaders.—Thrift Magazine

HARTMAN THEATER.

Thurston, the magician, returns to the Hartman theater, Columbus, on next Monday evening, February 7, on his twenty-first annual tour for a week's engagement, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. He brings with him this season the most elaborate magical production he has ever offered to local theatergoers. For the first time in the history of magic the real East Indian rope trick will be presented on a fully lighted theater stage. The Hindu rope trick is the most talked of illusion in all magic. This is the first time it has ever been presented outside the guarded purlieus of the Yogi sects of the Himalaya mountains in India.

Mr. Thurston has been for many years a student and investigator of Hindu magic. He has delved deep into the esoteric lore of that mysterious land. For several months he lived with a band of high class Yogi magi-adapted in the fastnesses of the Himalayas, near Darjeeling, India, and it was while in that occult company that he conceived the idea of translating the famous rope trick from its native heath, so to say, to the theater stage. For more than a decade he has worked and experimented on this illusion and it was only a few short weeks ago that his dream was realized and the seeming miracle perfected for presentation before the public. And, now for the first time Columbus audiences will see a native Hindu boy actually climbing a rope on a brilliantly lighted theater stage. A rope tossed into the air by a swarthy, turbaned Yogi. A rope hanging in mid air like Mohamet's casket at Mecca. Up, up the boy will climb. As he nears the top, while yet in full view of all the spectators in the Hartman, and while the beams of spotlights are playing all about him, he will vanish.

In addition to the "Rope Trick" this season's program is complete with an abundance of new mysteries. Thurston claims that it is the best and most entertaining program that he has ever presented. Among the many illusions are "Buried Alive," an Oriental mystery, "Broadcasting a Woman," "The Vanishing Horse and Rider," "The Human Cannon Ball," "Crushing a Woman," "The Great Hindu Basket Trick," "The Vanishing Donkey," "The Elastic Lady," "The Mystic Follies" and "The Phantom Princess" who floats out over the stage into the orchestra, then vanishing like a cloud in thin air. In all there are one hundred baffling mysteries. Thurston's company consists of thirty-five people, including many beautiful girls, and three 60 ft. baggage cars are needed to transport the equipment.

HELPED TO DRILL —FIRST OIL WELL

"Sam" Smith Only Survivor of Titusville Adventure.

Titusville, Pa. — There's nothing startling about his name—it's plain "Sam" Smith—but quite the contrary is his distinction. He is the one man still living who had a part in drilling the world's first oil well.

Back in 1859 Edwin L. Drake, an office clerk, sought a man to test his theory that petroleum could be obtained in large quantities by drilling into the earth, and William A. Smith, father of "Sam," of Tarentum, Pa., a driller of salt wells, was selected to try the experiment.

"Sam" was a lad of sixteen years at the time. He was on the scene, near here, when the first oil bubbled forth.

Describing the historic achievement, Smith said the spot for locating the original well was selected because at that point a pool of surface petroleum had collected for years. The Indians had scooped oil from the puddle to mix paint for facial and bodily decorations. Later the white man had dipped it to lubricate the machinery in nearby sawmills.

"In sinking the first oil well, the machinery was operated by a steam engine, hauled overland by horses from a distant railway station," Smith said. "After the drill had been going a week and had reached a depth of 69 feet, father found oil foaming up in the pipe and immediately stopped the drill. The tools were removed and a common pitcher pump, such as used on any family well, took the place of the drill. The output at first was 14 barrels daily. At first the product brought $1 a gallon."

Drake, a visionary man with little conception of the value of money, died in poverty without ever having realized on his great contribution. He is buried here, where a huge memorial, the contribution of the late Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company, marks the grave of the discoverer of oil and that of his wife.

Holy Oil

The holy anointing oil referred to in the Bible had a base of olive oil and was scented with flowery myrrh, sweet cinnamon, sweet calamus and cassia. These ingredients were probably mixed with the oil in powder form, the mixture then heated until the oil absorbed the odors and allowed to stand until the insoluble matter settled and the oil could be decanted.

Doctor Braves Ice in Sled to Aid Woman

New York.—Driving his sled across Great South bay at 2:30 o'clock in the morning to reach a patient has made lifelong friends for Dr. John W. Bennett of Patchogue.

The wife of Albert Jones, second in command of the Belpoint station coast guards, was taken dangerously ill at night. First aid methods brought no relief. A telephone call to Quogue, 35 miles down the shore, was relayed to Patchogue. Doctor Bennett was notified.

The guardsmen suggested they would come for him in a boat if he would make the trip across seven miles of rough water. Ascertaining Mrs. Jones' condition, Doctor Bennett decided too much time would be lost this way.

Summoning a nurse, the physician got into his sled and started out. Across the water they could see flares, sent up at intervals by the coast guard. The seven-mile run was made in less than 14 minutes.

Examining the patient, Doctor Bennett ordered she be taken to a hospital for an operation. The sick woman was bundled into blankets and taken to Patchogue. Her condition is still serious.

Valuable Stamps

A Western Australia penny stamp, 1875, surcharged three times—an exceedingly rare example—was sold at an auction in London for $150. Twenty-four Tonga halfpenny stamps, of 1896, were sold for $180. The feature of these stamps was the misspelling "haalf."

Demand for Rubber Shows No Diminution

Christopher Columbus, on his second voyage, found the natives of the island of Haiti playing with rubber balls and reported the discovery of the elastic and resilient substance, which since then has been adapted to many uses. But it was not till the last century that rubber was utilized extensively. When Goodyear, after long years of patient and costly experiment, found a way to overcome its stickiness when subjected to heat.

Since then the demand for it has increased steadily and greatly, and at the present time the supply is so far short of the demand that companies are organized to cultivate rubber trees in all parts of the world, and speculation in the shares of the companies has frequently been a sort of craze.

More than one-half of the rubber production of the world is used for automobile tires. As the supply is inadequate, the price has continually increased. Even rubber of a poor quality sells for a good price.

DREDGE SINKS IN SOFT SAND

The Nelson Construction Company, sub-contractors on the new Chesapeake & Hocking Railroad, have a new drag-line, a type of shovel or dredge, stuck in Salt creek at Richmond Dale. Workmen are busy now building a coffer-dam around the mired machine in an effort to extricate it.

The drag-line weighs 100 tons and had just been purchased from a Bucyrus company at a cost of $42,000. It is said the shipping charges amounted to nearly $1,000. The dredge was received the latter part of last week, and after unloading it the operators attempted to take it across a shallow part of Salt creek. The dredge stuck, and sank several feet down in the stream bed. The coffer-dam construction necessary to remove it will cost approximately $5,000. —News-Advertiser, Chillicothe.

LECTURE ON PIANO TO BE BROADCAST

Second of Series of Music Appreciation Talks by WEAQ, Ohio State University, to Feature Popular Home Instrument

Columbus, O.,—(Special) Radio Station WEAQ at Ohio State University has announced that the second of the series of music appreciation talks being broadcast by that station will be given at 8:45 P. M. on Wednesday, February 9. The violin was discussed in the first talk. The next lecture will deal with the piano.

These programs are being sponsored by the Heaton Music Company of Columbus, and the talks are being prepared and given by Mrs. Bessie Shipman Dustman of Columbus, who is well known in Columbus and Cincinnati as a music appreciation authority.

Various Central Ohio music artists are illustrating Mrs. Dustman's talks. Mrs. Norma Hopkins Putnam having been the assisting artist on the first program when the violin was illustrated. Miss Louise Ackerman, Columbus concert pianist, will illustrate the piano lecture on Feb. 9. Miss Ackerman recently returned from studying in the East and is considered one of the most accomplished pianists in the state.

Other instruments of the orchestra will be featured on future "Heaton Hour" programs, which will be a weekly feature from the Ohio State University radio station for several weeks.

Ex-Shah of Persia Is Going Into Business

Paris.—As a perfume dealer selling delicate scents from his native Persia, the vale of Kashmir and other oriental lands of mystery and incense, Ahmad Majar, deposed shah of Persia, hopes to recoup his broken finances.

Since his flight to Paris in 1923, even before Reza Khan deposed him, this last ruler of the Majar dynasty has become known to the boulevards, the gambling casinos and the gayest spots of the city. A short black-haired, mild-mannered person who saw no tragedy in his loss of a throne, Ahmad found that a man of twenty-nine years could completely forget falls of dynasties in Paris. His secretary, carrying a revolver and packages of high-denomination franc notes, accompanied him to the casinos. If he wins the profit usually goes to an attractive female companion. If he loses more of the jewels which he had brought from Teheran are sold. Now almost all of the jewels are gone.

Despite the drastic reductions in the expenses of his establishment the former shah feels that he must turn to a business career. Paris, ever delighted with exotic perfumes, will be quick, he thinks, to buy the rare creations of the country Ahmad knows so well, where hundreds of years ago roses, lilies and other flowers were packed away in jars to be used years later in some dainty boudoir.

Mother of 24 Rears
4 Adopted Children

Barnsley, Yorkshire.—Villages in this part of England are vying for the largest family.

The first claim was made by the village of Denaby Main, when Mrs. William Manchester, wife of a miner, became the mother of her nineteenth child.

The village of Blacker Hill then put up Noah Bissell and his next door neighbor, Thomas Hazelwood, both of whom are fathers of 22 children, and pointed out Matthew Dawson of the same village, who has a family of 17. Bissell organized a football team among his sons and challenged all comers.

The record, however, is held by Mrs. John Austen of Platt's Common, near Barnsley, who is mother of 24, and has, in addition, reared 4 adopted children. One of Mrs. Austen's daughters has 12 children and two others 11 each.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Greater Hero Than Washington Says Dr. Wm. E. Barton.

A comparison of the merits of two great Americans—Abraham Lincoln and George Washington—is made by Dr. William E. Barton in an article in this week's Liberty. "The place of Abraham Lincoln as America's foremost and best-beloved hero," says Dr. Barton, "I regard as permanent and secure."

"First of all," Dr. Barton explains, "Abraham Lincoln was truly an American in a sense which George Washington could not be. The American ideal was as yet information in Washington's day. There was no adequate definition of national unity, neither was there adequate geographical expansion for the development of the American type. George Washington was an English gentleman, with an English coat of arms, an English background, and an English outlook. He fought on this side of the ocean the transatlantic section of an English civil war against the arrogance of a Teutonic monarchy."

"The real American," Dr. Barton continues, "could not be developed till the Appalachians had been scaled and a civilization established in the interior, dependent on its own efforts and not on the importation of either commodities or ideas. Abraham Lincoln belonged to a generation born and reared under influences almost 100 per cent American. His food, clothing, education, reading, and the life and habits of his associates, all belonged to the forest and soil of America."

Lexicographers, Observe

As the shoplifter sometimes pleads "kleptomania," so we may soon have the liar pleading "empathy." That is a new word for the psychologists, invented by Professor Fryer of New York university. Arthur Brisbane defines "empathy" thus: "First we think of a thing with sympathy. Then we get mixed, inject ourselves into the affair, in our imaginations, and soon are ready to swear, with perfect sincerity, that we saw what we never saw."

Speaking of new words the other day Isaac J. Sherman, while addressing the National Association of Manufacturers, used the expression "the infernalia of destruction," meaning "the hellish forms of armament." "Infernalia" was well coined; this column heartily indorses it. Let it go into the dictionary.—Boston Transcript.

Snake Worshipers Ousted

A movement is on to do away with the ceremonial in the Cherra Pongee hills of India of snake worshippers who still make human sacrifices. According to tradition a huge snake once raided the surrounding territory, devouring girls and children. From that the snake worshipping ritual calling for a human sacrifice came into being. The authorities of the country have now started a drive to run out of the country such charlatans preying on the superstitions of the natives.

A funny thing about failure—it never exists until you recognize it.

All good New Yorkers love a fire—but they love a parade better. This was demonstrated when police, called to hold in check a dense crowd gathered to view a small basement fire suddenly had their problem solved by a band and 120 brilliantly uniformed Cossacks, who crossed Fifth avenue a block away. The crowd, with a single impulse, deserted the firemen to follow the parade.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

KATHERINE GARVIN BEFORE COMMITTEE

The national executive committee of the American Legion at its meeting January 10 and 11 at national headquarters in Indianapolis, and in which every state and foreign department of the Legion was represented, heard Miss Katherine Garvin of London, England, tell her impressions of America which she will carry back with her next summer.

Miss Garvin is a woman student in the Legion's exchange of scholarships through the Fidae, the international society of veterans' organizations of which the Legion is the member society from the United States. Miss Garvin is the daughter of J. L. Garvin, editor of the Observer of London. He is one of the foremost of British journalists. Miss Garvin is now a student in the graduate school of the University of Michigan, and was brought to Indianapolis especially to appear before the national executive committee.

The fellowship that was awarded to her was made possible through the co-operation of the English-Speaking Union of the United States and the similar Union of Great Britain. The Fidae arranged the exchange of scholarships and Miss Frances E. Riggs of Detroit financed it.

Miss Garvin spoke on the "Educational Peace Program of Fidae," and told many of her experiences in her study of American people in the few months she had been studying at the university at Ann Arbor.

"I have been asked some very amusing questions since I have been in the states," Miss Garvin told the committee. "I have been told that the English are egotistic, because they do not care what people think of them. I agree, except I think the cause of the egotism is because they are too sensitive about what people think of them, and protect themselves with a glacial exterior which too often gives the impression of hostility."

The Legion's purpose in sponsoring and aiding in the exchange of scholarships is to promote understanding and world peace. In this regard, Miss Garvin said:

"It may be thought that one student each year can do little to alter the current of public opinion, but it depends upon the person. Much good can be done by even one person of average sanity, open-mindedness, friendliness and toleration. For we all have friends and relations to whom we write. And when we go home, they wait in shoals to hear what we have done, what we think of America, how the American who stays at home compares with the tourists, and so on. If we give a fair and favorable report, more people will want to follow in the same spirit of friendship and understanding."

"I do not think that any one born in America can parallel the thrill of exploration that any European must have when he first lands in New York. Over here, Europe can never completely be an unknown quantity. You have cathedrals and houses and churches built upon the European pattern."

"I derive an unqualified delight from occurrences which must appear to you as perfectly natural. I was amazed, could hardly believe my eyes, when I saw a policeman take a telephone out of a telephone post. When I told my English friends about it they refused to believe me, and I had to make myself the laughing stock of a girls' dormitory before I could get corroboration for my statement."

"You cannot realize how typical of America the 'movies' are unless you are not an American, especially the comedies. I never seriously expected to see an automobile as dilapidated as some of those in the comedies. But since coming to America, I have enjoyed a good many. I thought the speed of elevators, as portrayed in 'movies,' was exaggerated, but I find it justified by the express elevators in the New York business buildings."

No Limit on Chow on Legion Visit to Paris

Chow in the second A. E. F. will be in contrast to that served veterans in the World war on the trip "over." In wartime at sea there were kicks aplenty on the bread, black coffee and slum. On the second trip over with the Legion in September everything is offered from hors d'oeuvres to peach-melba pastry. Compare this chow with the slum of war days. On the best and medium-grade passage to France Legionnaires may order: Hors d'oeuvres-varies, consommé Julienne-creme-garbare, boiled trout, cucumbers, parsley sauce, fried filets, Queenstown sole, tete de veau en tortue, rissoles-montglas, roast quarters of lamb, mint sauce; Marrowfat peas, carrots, vichy potatoes, broiled, roast and croquette; roast turkey, cranberry sauce; Romaine salad, asparagus oil butter; plum pudding, brandy sauce; fancy pastry, peach melba, fruits, cheese and coffee. The minimum-grade passage dinner is just as wholesome but not served in as many courses.

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union-Herald:—Jacob Charles Reiterman was born February 25, 1848 in Pike county, near Beaver.

He was the son of Adam and Barbara Shultz Reiterman. His parents emigrated from the province of Bavaria, Germany. They came in the sail ship, Cordova, and saw only sky and water for 44 days with no means of propelling the ship except the wind.

When near the United States the boat drifted for several days landing at Baltimore, Maryland. They came to Fredericktown on a train drawn by horses. From there they went by wagon to Wheeling, West Virginia. Nineteen days were consumed in making the trip from Wheeling to Portsmouth, Ohio, by canal boat.

From Portsmouth they came to Beaver by wagon. A small log cabin was there in which they dwelt until a two story house was later built.

Mr. Reiterman was one of a family of three children, one brother and one sister, who have preceded him in death.

He was married to Jane Rader December 8, 1875, and they celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on December 8, 1925. To this union were born five children; three daughters and two sons; Mrs. John Fry, of Ashville, Miss Nancy Reiterman, at home; Mrs. Lawrence Halsey of Lancaster, and Harry Reiterman of Mt. Sterling and Lloyd Reiterman of Chillicothe. who with the wife and three grandchildren survive.

He united with the Methodist church in early childhood was a great lover of music and flowers and home was his kingdom.

The funeral was held at the late home on Caldwell street, Rev. Blai, a former pastor and friend officiating.

Mrs. J. D. Withgott, accompanied by Mrs. P. J. Blosser, sang sweetly the hymns; "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break," "Nearer, My God to Thee" and "Shall We Gather at the River?" the latter being one which the deceased sang so often to his children. A large number of friends from out of town were also in attendance.

The pallbearers were the two sons; Harry and Lloyd Reiterman, two sons-in-laws, Mr. John Fry Jr., and Mrs. Lawrence Halsey and two nephews, Mr. Porter Rader and Mr. Ralph Head. Interment in the family lot at Grandview.

Relatives from a distance were Porter and Ira Rader, Portsmouth; Mr. and Mrs. Florence Rader, Waverly; Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Rader, Ashville; Mr. and Mrs. Wood Immell, Kingston; Mr. John R. Fry Sr., Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rader, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Head, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rader, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Rader, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rader Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. Cora Hood Mrs. William Sheetz, Mrs. B. H. Rader and daughter, Miss Nettie Rader, William and Austin Rader, Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. James Bicknell, Springfield; L. C. SPITE FENCE SEPARATES TWO NEW TOWNS IN TEXAS

Torn Down Several Times, Armed Guards Are Now on Duty to Protect It.

Stinnett, Texas.—Perhaps no more remarkable "spite" fence was ever built than that which separates the towns of Stinnett and East Stinnett. These two new and rapidly growing communities are in the heart of the Hutchinson county oil field of the Panhandle. The two towns adjoin and only a street separates them. The people of Stinnett for some unexplained reason fell out with the people of their neighboring town of East Stinnett and it was decided to sever all communications between the two places.

To prevent traffic from passing from one town to another a fence was built across the street leading from East Stinnett into Stinnett. At first it was only a makeshift of two-by-fours, but a careless truckman ran over it. Then it was built stronger and extended somewhat. Likewise it was torn down.

Then a real honest-to-goodness fence was put up. It consisted of railroad ties put in the ground, many barb wires strung along them, some two-by-twelves spiked to them and a big cable along on top. It was likewise extended out in the field in each direction, separating the two townsites, but travel continued around it. Several nights ago a squad of men arrived and while some patrolled with shotguns, others proceeded to lay the fence flat. It was rebuilt and extended the next day and also a shack was moved up to the west side of it and armed guards are stationed therein, with orders to see that no one again molests it.

In the meantime, several by-plays have been going on in the way of painting signs on the fence and other stunts that add to the merriment.

Had the Needed Push

"WELL, there's one good thing about the firm's falling," Robert said, a smile in his fine gray eyes. "Even if it cost us our jobs, it gives me a dandy excuse to urge you to marry me and to help me make a home."

Avery shook her head, the shock of having been notified only two hours before that the firm would cease business still troubling her. Even his tender eyes smiling over the little restaurant table did not cheer her.

"What a time to talk of marriage, dear! You without work, and I—"

she began. "Oh, I am a pretty competent person, my lady; and besides I have a tip on another position. Then we've saved enough money to make a start, you know."

She laughed a bit somberly. "But we want to make more than a start; and if we both work, we can save just so much more. Besides, I, too, am a pretty competent person, I would have you understand, in a business way; my salary has been a wee bit more than yours, remember."

"Ouch!" he commented on the thrust. "I know it, mischief, but do you realize five years have gone since I first saw you—and lost my heart to you then and there? And you would be just as competent keeping a little home for me? Golly, how I dream of it—and then wake up!" His gray eyes darkened.

She sighed a little wistfully, too, as a vision of a home with him in it through all the years came before her eyes. Then she straightened.

"We're just dreaming, dear. We must have money, and we must both work for it. It's money that makes a home go, you know," she said with decision.

"Ye-eh," he said slowly, "but I have a hunch that love without a lot of money can give it an awful push!"

She slipped her small hand into his for a moment. "I know, Robert, but we must be practical."

"I suppose so," he agreed ruefully. "And that means hunt for another job for you. I think my tip will work out. I almost hope you don't get one!"

She laughed. "You just watch me!"

In spite of her boast, at the close of the next day she was not so certain. There was work enough, in a way, but she was determined to win a position with a salary that satisfied her.

Robert had gone to a neighboring city on the trail of his tip; so she ran out to her sister's pretty little suburban home for the evening.

The visit left Avery rested and at the same time a bit uncomfortable, for it set her to dreaming again of making a brave start toward a home for herself and Robert even if funds were lacking. But she put the thought aside; the money was necessary, and she knew that she was a better wage-earner than he.

Then came good news. The friendly voice of the former office manager of the firm that had failed told her over the telephone that he had recommended her for a position in the same city to which he had sent Robert. It was just the work which was her specialty, and she hurried away with high hopes.

"Now I will show Mr. Robert that I can land a good position as easily as he can," she promised herself with glee, recalling the gay note in which he had notified her that he had won the position he went after.

Later on, when she entered the office of the head of the department to which she had been directed, she found herself facing a white-haired man whose keen but kind eyes seemed to gather all she had to say before she said it.

"Well, Miss Miller, I am somewhat averse to hiring women in this business. I may be old-fashioned, but I think the place for some girls—not all, of course—is in a home of their own," he said mildly. "At least, the men don't up and get married and leave us in the lurch. Frankly, would we be in danger of losing you?"

She started to say "No!" then she hesitated. "I can promise that—"

"By the way," he said quickly, pulling a memorandum toward him, "I forgot. We have already hired a young man for the position—Mr. Robert Ames."

She gasped, and he looked up. "Do you know him?" he asked.

"He is—he is—yes, I know him," she added waveringly.

"Perhaps you would like to see him," the man said in his quick way, and he pressed a button.

A moment later Robert stepped in to stop and stare at her. Then the glad lovelight shone in his eyes.

"Why, Avery, you—"

She was conscious of a number of things—that the manager had stepped softly out, that she was weary, that here was the one who loved her.

He gathered her in his arms. "You got your tip from old Blake and so did I! I'll bet the old fellow put his friend here onto us in hopes they could push us into matrimony. So he turned you down, did he? Well, never mind, honey, there are other jobs," he said gently.

"I guess—guess I don't want one—except keeping a home for you," she said in a half whisper.

"What!" he exclaimed in a voice so glad with sudden joy that tears came into her eyes as she lifted her lips for his kiss. "You mean it? Then here's a dream come true!"

BIGGEST GAME OF THE SEASON AT GYM FEB. 10

Thursday night marks another epoch in sportsdom for Circleville lovers of basketball when Olsen's Terrible Swedes of Coffeyville, Kansas will meet the C. A. C. boys on the C. A. C. court.

Olsen and his team need no introduction to local basketball fans. They appeared in this city on two occasions last season. Once playing the C. A. C., later meeting the Columbus Kin-nears.

Needless to say fans who were fortunate enough to witness the games last season will remember the caliber of the Swedes. Also will recall their first class sportsmanship. But for those of our followers who are new to this sport something should be said about Olson himself. The countries champion back hand passer, whose playing is almost uncanny. Then there is Stewart; one of the mainstays of the team. In fact Olsen has a combination of players that would be hard to equal.

Advance information received from newspaper reports of the Swedes showing during the early part of the present season tends to indicate that they are even stronger than last year.

The C. A. C. boys have also proven that they can play some basketball. They too have a stronger team than last season and they are going to fight Olsen and his crew for all there is in it and you can rest assured that this game is going to be the best demonstration of basketball put out so far this season, regardless of its outcome.

As an added attraction for the game the services of Soldier Caruso have been secured. Soldier Caruso is an entertainer of merit and will help the spectators pass away the time between halves with the melodies of his silver toned tenor voice. This attraction is scheduled to get under way at 8:15 p. m. Come early to get a good seat.

Love's Cruelties

Ed Howe discovers that as a race becomes more practical with age, the credits and debts of love are gone over with more candor and wisdom. Some of the debts are very hard on both sides; some say worse with women than with men. Still, love sometimes slaps a man pretty hard, too.—Cap-pers Weekly.

Making Artificial Ice

It is said the first commercial factory for making ice was established in New Orleans in 1860. The process was not wholly satisfactory and in 1870 there were only three other plants in operation. Later improvements resulted in a rapid growth of the business.

SAILS ALL SEAS IN SMALL CRAFT

Lone Rover Hasn't Even Cat or Dog for Company on His Schooner.

Portland, Maine.—Fifteen years ago Capt. Thomas Drake of Seattle, Wash., rode out of the West at the wheel of a jaunty little schooner, made by his own hands. And all these years has the lone rover sailed the seas. Alone he stands the watches. Not even a cat or dog sails to keep him company. And Captain Drake is happy and care-free at sixty-three years. His will is the wind's will and his home a little rocking, 35-foot schooner.

In ports all up and down the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Indies his ship is known as the best. He takes life as he finds it with each rising sun, picks up a few cents here and there selling shells, coral, beads and knick-knacks, sets his sail and travels on to the golden port on the horizon.

Captain Drake is a sturdy little man, standing exactly five feet in his suction sneakers. His face is bronzed by the salt spray, his muscles, steely; his eyes, clear. He is slightly lame from an injury received years ago when he fell from the mast of an old coaster and broke a hip. But he still is sprightly.

Born in England.

The captain was born at Gravesend, England, with the smell of salt in his nostrils. The county of Kent has raised many great men of the sea and tales of their exploits were the captain's heritage. His earliest memory is of the great white sails of the schooners slipping up the Thames toward London, their holds filled with merchandise from all parts of the world. The family moved to the United States when the captain was a small boy, but the love and tradition of the sea were instilled in him and with his first long trousers he answered the call.

But with the passing of the stately schooners and the advent of steam the captain became restless. The snap of a sheet in a good wind was life to him. It was then he built his own craft and put to sea as a sailor should. His first craft was the Sir Francis which met grief on the coast of Mexico five years ago. A mighty gale picked the little ship up one black night and cast it against a reef. The captain, clinging to wreckage, was washed ashore, only to fall into the hands of Mexican bandits. The outlaws stripped him of his clothes and his few valuable possessions. For two weeks he was kept prisoner, locked up in a filthy cabin with little food. Arrival of federal troops delivered him when the bandits fled, leaving him behind.

"From Mexico I made my way back to Frisco," the captain relates. "It was a hard, long journey with a job for a day or two here and there and finally a ship which landed me safe inside the Golden Gate."

Builds the Pilgrim.

"After a few days in Frisco I got a ship to Seattle. Back home again, I worked for a time. I scraped a little money together and built this boat. It took me five months. Everything you see about her is hand made. When she was done and ready to sail I christened her The Pilgrim. It is more or less of an adventure, you know, something rarely done, sailing about all alone. So I thought The Pilgrim a good name for her."

The Pilgrim boasts simple, homely conveniences. There's nothing elaborate about her, but she is furnished adequately. Two large bunks, a desk, and a little cook stove are her principal furnishings. A compendious log book is nearly filled with names. North in the summer and South in the winter sails the captain, planning to keep just ahead of the cold weather and the gales. When the captain dropped anchor in Portland harbor a few weeks ago he was headed for the Southern coast, taking advantage of the mild skies of Indian summer.

"I have to see America first," he explained. "When cold weather sets in I'm going to point her nose to the West Indies, load up with curios, and take a trip back to the old country. From England I'm going to drop down the French and Spanish coasts to the Mediterranean. It's a great sea, the Mediterranean, and I want to sail her again before I die."

Captain Drake has never been married. The sea was his only bride early in his youth. It has been his companion through middle age. It will be his nurse in old age.

Two Ways

"Up in Kay See," remarked Burdett, who was just back from the big burg, "some of the merchants stand in their doorways to grab customers. Here in Petunia they are usually to be found out by their back doors, or a ways up the street, arguing politics or religion, or pitching horseshoes with acquaintances, and have to be yelled in if you want to buy anything of 'em."—Kansas City Star.

AMUSEMENTS

Harold Lloyd, the lovable spectacled laughster, came to town last night in what a capacity audience applauded as the best comedy of the year. Its title? "The Kid Brother." Just read it and read!

"The Kid Brother" is the sort of thing we expect from Lloyd. That is its very unusualness—of plot, gags and action—make it stand out and alone. In a field as crowded as it is large, Harold's friendly face shines out. Truly has he been crowned and truly does he deserve a scepter as the king of comedy.

His latest, in which he receives able support from a company headed by Jobyna Ralston, Ralph Yearsley, Eddie Boland and Walter James, takes place "up in them thar hills." As Harold Hickory, youngest son of the biggest man in town, Lloyd creates a character that's slightly reminiscent of "Grandma's Boy."

The actual story starts when a medicine show comes to town. The whole outfit—strong man, "spieler" and dancing girl—arrive at Sheriff Hickory's for a permit. With father's badge on his chest, Harold, under the soulful appeal of the girl's eyes, signs their document. Then, when Hickory gets home, things start humming. Father insists that if Harold had enough authority to issue a license he'll have to make them leave. Harold, victim of an inferiority complex, starts off. The laughs do too, and they don't stop till the final closeup.

But that's not all! While Harold is endeavoring to stop the performance, the tent catches fire, Sheriff Hickory's money is stolen, the thieves escape, there's a terrible fight aboard an abandoned ship, there are—well, in addition, long Lloyd laughs run thru out the length of the film.

Why say more? Harold Lloyd's at the Met in his latest Paramount release. If you miss "The Kid Brother" you're kidding yourself; if you see it, you'll have the time of your life.

Beautiful Dolls Used as

Lure to Sell Delicacies

Paris.—The Alsatian restaurants of Paris have hit upon a new way to sell their pate de foie gras, the food that made Strasbourg famous.

Cans of pate, all ready to be taken home, are placed beneath the voluminous skirts of dolls dressed in the provincial costume, with big Alsatian bows adorning their hair. A wife, sweetheart or daughter, taken into the restaurant for a good dinner, is almost sure to be attracted to the dolls, placed on tables in the center of the room. When her escort yields to her whim and decides to buy the doll, he has to buy the pate de foie gras that goes with it—and there are few delicacies in the world that cost so much.

Food Thoughts for Valentine Party Lunches

Best Road to Man's Heart Through Stomach

Luncheon for St. Valentine's party should be the hostess' first consideration. Decorations and games are of secondary importance.

The old saying about the way to the heart being through the stomach is as true today as it ever was. And the adage applies to girls as well as to boys.

Nicely served luncheons go a long way toward making parties a success. If anything is to be neglected, let it not be the party refreshments. That, however, does not mean that a course meal is essential. On the contrary, a few carefully chosen dishes are preferable. The appended recipes are suggestive of what may appropriately be served by the St. Valentine hostess:

Valentine Party Luncheon

Grape Juice
Cream of Tomato Soup
Heart Shaped Croquettes
Hearts of Celery Stuffed Olives
Chicken a la King in Heart Shaped Patties Garnished with Pimento Cut in Heart Shapes
Potato Croquettes
Buttered Beets (slices cut in Heart Shapes)
Head Lettuce Salad
Thousand Island Dressing
Strawberry Jello
Whipped Cream Sauce
Silver Cake cut in Heart Shapes and Frosted with Pink Icing

Cream of Tomato Soup
1 No. 2 can tomatoes (2 1/2 cups) 1/2 tsp. salt
2 sprigs parsley 1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water
1/2 tsp. thyme 1 tsp. flour
1/2 bay leaf 1 tsp. butter
1/2 tsp. peppercorns 1 tsp. salt
4 cloves 1/2 tsp. sugar
1 slice onion 1/2 tsp. sugar

Prepare white sauce of diluted milk, flour, butter, salt and pepper. Boil tomatoes with all the seasonings for 5 minutes, then rub through a sieve. There should be 2 cups of pulp and liquid. If there are not 2 cups, make up the quantity with water. Pour hot tomato pulp slowly into hot white sauce. Serve at once. Yield: 4 servings.

Chicken a la King

3 cups cold chicken 2 cups evaporated milk
3 tsp. butter 1/2 lb. mushrooms
1/2 green pepper, 2 cups chicken broth
1/2 shredded Salt
1/2 pimento, shredded Pepper
Cook the peppers (also mushrooms if they are used) in the butter for 5 minutes, keeping them covered while cooking slowly. Add the flour and seasonings, also the milk and broth. Stir to a smooth sauce. Put chicken in sauce to heat. Cook in double boiler to prevent curdling. Yield: 8 servings.

Silver Cake.

1 lb. sugar 1/4 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1/2 cup water
1/2 lb. butter 1/2 cup water
1/2 pt. egg whites (8 to 10 whites) 1 oz. baking powder
1/4 tsp. almond 1 lb. pastry flour
1/2 tsp. lemon extract 1/4 oz. salt
Cream fat at medium speed until soft, then add sugar and cream until white and smooth. Add unbeaten egg whites and continue beating with fast speed until the mixture has the appearance almost of softened marshmallow. Add the diluted milk and the dry ingredients (which have been sifted together thoroughly) alternately, beginning and ending with flour. Add flavoring at last. Bake at 375 degrees Fahrenheit (medium oven). Yield: 2 double layers or 1 large 3-lb. sheet or 2 squares with 1 1/2 lb. each. Serves 24.

Whipped Cream Sauce

1 cup cream 1/2 cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup powdered sugar Few grains salt
Combine the evaporated milk and cream. Chill and whip until stiff, then add the sugar and salt. Keep in refrigerator until ready to serve. Yield: 3 cups.

Deaths From Snake Bites

Over 400 persons died from snake bites in the United States during the past three years. The greatest number of deaths was in the southern states. The increase in number is supposedly due to touring and camping.

Will you say it just for the day or through the years to come?

NOW comes the time of year when the telltale stethoscope finds hearts more adfluter, when pulses beat with ardency renewed.

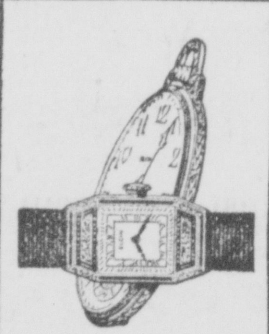

And no wonder! For just in the offing is St. Valentine's, the day set apart by the Saint of Hearts for all true lovers . . . filial, fraternal and romantic . . . to play the roles of Romeo and Juliet, or of Darby and Joan.

Fortunately, that's not hard to do. For just 'round the corner is a jeweler, and he deals in valentines of four dimensions . . . Beauty, Utility, Permanence and Value.

Valentines wrought of gold and silver or set with a precious jewel . . . valentines not necessarily expensive yet enduring, to be admired and cherished through the years.

Tokens that link the lovely with the lasting, the precious with the practical . . . a ring . . . a pin . . . perhaps a silver vase . . . or best of all, an Elgin watch.

A gift that will serve the minutes and the hours, and survive the decades. A gift, indeed, that will "say it for a lifetime."

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1700.

Learn More About Foods

Teacher—The lesson, today, is to be about foods. John, why does corn build strong bodies?

John—Because corn contains valuable food elements which are almost completely utilized by the body.

Teacher—Name these elements.

John—Fat, protein, carbohydrates, starch and vitamins.

Teacher—What property do peas contain which makes them a substitute for meat?

John—Protein.

Teacher—Why are canned peas and canned corn of greater food value than the home-cooked?

John—Because the canneries are located near the fields and the corn and peas can be cooked immediately after gathering, instead of dried out in shipping. Also, because they are cooked at a higher temperature for a shorter period, which process retains more vitamins than the slower cooking in the home.

Teacher—Why is canned pineapple of more food value than fresh pineapple which we get in this country?

John—Because canned pineapple is ripened in the sunny fields of Hawaii, whereas fresh pineapple, has to be picked green and ripen in the holds of shipping vessels.

Teacher—Name the food elements contained in pineapple.

John—Pineapple contains sugar, mineral, carbohydrates, an enzyme called bromelain, and vitamins A, B and C.

AGE-OLD ADVICE ON CARE OF CHILDREN

There is a modern ring to much of the advice given for rearing children, in "De Liberorum Eruditione," written by Mafeo Vegio of Lodi in the first half of the Fifteenth century. Rev. Bede Jarrett, O. P., describes the book in his "Social Theories of the Middle Ages: 1200-1500" (Little, Brown). Mafeo said: "Children should not be checked in their crying, for this is thought to develop their strength. . . . No silly baby talk; half-words only should be taught them. . . . No tales of monsters should be told them; nor should they be frightened with names of terror, nor bogies, such as those with which nurses love to terrify them. . . . Even as their food is to be carefully chosen, so as carefully should be the words they hear." Mafeo ends his advice on the education of smaller children with "Let children be so treated that they are neither beaten like asses nor like kittens lured by silly soothing words. The noblest horses need the firmest hands."

THOUGHT BAD LUCK TO "SAVE FROM SEA"

Strange superstitions in connection with drowning people are mentioned by an English scientist. About eighteen years ago a friend of my family, a doctor, practicing in the extreme west of Ireland, was called to a case on a winter night, to reach which he had to cross the bay in an open boat. Having seen his patient, he and the boatman were returning to the mainland, when the boat was capsized. After struggling in the water they managed to climb on to a rock, where they were found in the morning by a search party sent out by the doctor's wife, dead from exposure and cold, but not drowned. Some people on land knew at the time what had happened, and remained all night on the shore but did nothing to help the two men. At the inquest they stated: "If you take from the sea the sea will take from you." In Russia it is said people forbade their children to go to the river in the springtime before the river had its victim. At the news, the whole village sighed with relief and everybody took his first dip.—Pierre Van Passen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

THOSE DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS

To see $100,000,000 printed in big letters across the top of the front page of our Ohio papers, as a proposed expenditure for a single purpose, has a somewhat staggering effect. Even for the fourth state in the Union, this is a large sum of money. It is not proposed, however, to spend such a sum right out of hand. The state highway director estimates that it would take about ten years to carry the program into effect, and the necessary bonds would be issued as the money was needed.

The New York legislature last year authorized bonds for the same purpose up to three times the amount proposed in Ohio. Our state is possessed of vast wealth, and it cannot afford, in the name of economy, to permit the permanent continuance of the human slaughter that takes place at our large number of grade crossings, and becomes worse and worse as the traffic on our highways grows greater and greater.

As we are waking up to the need of conserving so many other of our resources, we must not neglect the one resource which gives all the others their importance—human life. Governor Donahey is correct in saying: "The elimination of dangerous grade crossings in this state is the most forward step that we could take in a program of conservation. The greatest asset that this state has is its citizenry, and every time a fatality occurs at a grade crossing, the state suffers a distinct loss."—Columbus Dispatch.

Longer Skirts Are Worn by the Women of Paris

Are the skirts worn by American women shorter than those seen in Paris? This question was put to one of the most famous French couturiers upon his arrival in this country recently "How can I tell," was his answer. "I have so far seen only the customs inspectors, and customs inspectors do not wear skirts." But, he continued, in Paris this winter the women wear skirts a little longer—not much, in some cases only an inch or so—but they are longer.

Another important fashion point given by this man, whose house has dressed the courts of Europe for three generations, is that in order to counteract the tendency toward masculine severity—which since the war has been so evident in fashions—the best designers contrive in the most subtle way to emphasize femininity. Waist-lines are accentuated but not the unyielding round waistlines of a decade ago. Instead the graceful molded lines call to mind Diana of the Hunt with her floating draperies that subtly define the natural beautiful lines of the figure.

In the fashions created for the Riviera and for resorts in America, white stands out as the shade of greatest importance. Next comes a tone of rosy red and then the flower tints of pink, green and violet used with such discretion that they are universally becoming to every type of woman.

Evening Hat Again in Fashion, Paris Decrees

The evening hat has once again come into fashion in Paris. Many smart women who find their shingle all that can be desired in the way of chic for daytime find themselves lacking in smartness in the evening.

The turban, which was once worn for evening, is no longer smart, and more complicated hats have been designed. They follow the same lines as those worn during the day, but take more liberties in the form of decorations of feathers, embroidery and lace.

Gold and silver lace are mostly used, but a few more original creators show brocades and embroidered metal cloths. The hats are only worn for dinner and informal restaurant wear, not for full dress functions. In these cases new headdresses have been designed to meet the occasion, which leave the top of the head free, just giving a touch of decoration to the side or front.

Velvet, satin and lame dresses are only types that can be worn with these hats and headdresses—chiffon and georgette dresses are much too youthful to be combined with ornaments.

Adopt Blousing Bodice to Attain Slenderness

The tradition of slenderness, after flirting with the flared hemline for two seasons, is now revived in all its slimmness. But the effect is far more difficult to achieve than when the chemise frock, with its pencil silhouette, was the vogue. Today's modes are more complicated, more intricately styled, and as a consequence it requires more skill to achieve the proper outline.

In order to attain the modish slenderness of the season, you should therefore adopt the blousing bodice, fairly snug, the fitted hipline and the skirt whose fullness is cleverly concealed by means of manipulating plaits or tucks. Long, clinging sleeves draped at the wrists will be found another efficient means of producing a slim outline. Your waistline, which can no longer be glossed over, should be distinct but not to the point of creating anything more than a temporary hiatus in the silhouette—it is a detail rather than a determining point of the modish winter outline.

THE ORGANIZED COMMUNITY

Organization has been a tremendous factor in American progress. Prominent among the various types or organization, is that of business. Every worker is given his task, and he is made to feel that his job must be well performed, or he can not hope to hold it. That system of organization and responsibility produces highly efficient results.

Then we have the municipal organization of the community, under which we collect taxes for the public benefit, and elect officers to perform various services. The taxes are efficiently collected and on the whole the municipal work is rather well done in most places. But the community has many needs outside the scope of the municipal offices.

Then there are the various voluntary organizations, churches, clubs, fraternal societies, Chamber of Commerce, etc. These perform a vast amount of useful labor.

Yet many things that need to be done, are not attended to in the average community. A great many people respond to all this organization only as they are forced to do so. They pay their taxes and work at their job because they are compelled to do so. But they do not co-operate as much as they should with the voluntary measures for community improvement.

What is needed in Chillicothe and everywhere else for that matter, is to get a more universal support for public betterment in the fields where organization and co-operation are purely voluntary. When the people will improve their homes and home grounds with the same earnestness with which they work at their job, then we shall see a wonderful development in civic beauty. When people will support the community causes with money and effort as they expect to support their municipal government with their taxes, then we shall come somewhere near having a model city.—Chillicothe News-Advertiser.

Japanese Laundry Work
Much of the washing of garments in Japan is done out of doors with plenty of cold water and no soap. Cotton garments are hung up on bamboo poles passed through the armpits, and are pulled smooth and straight before they dry. Usually silken garments are taken to pieces before washing, are smoothed out on a long board while wet, then are set up on the board in the sun to dry. Ironing is unnecessary.

The MASTERPIECE of the Oldest Washer Manufacturer
NEARLY fifty years of experimenting and study, backed by unlimited resources, have produced this Model E-25 (Electric) Voss Floto-Plane Washer—and a new era in home laundering.
20% added efficiency is the result of this "Thorough Cleansing with a Light Touch." The dirt is out, but all the wear is left in.
Model E-25 Electric—compactly built, with mechanism enclosed. Heavy, self-draining copper tub—one-piece cast-aluminum lid. Four-position self-locking wringer with 12-inch cushion rolls. Easily controlled. Special motor—simple flatbelt drive—cut-gear transmission. Folding bench.
The Floto-Plane Agitator takes advantage of the tendency of clothes to rise close to surface of water. At this point it functions—where suds are thickest—with no roughing of clothes. It is the water-level agitator that makes washing easier on clothes, gets them cleaner, in less time.
Come in and let us demonstrate this amazing washer to you.

The Hampton Chairs

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

FRED SAWYER could hardly find room for his own broad shoulders in the narrow passageway in the small overcrowded room where Mr. Samuels displayed his stock of antiques.

"My aunt, Mrs. Jenkins, saw some chairs in here yesterday," Fred began. "I don't know about such things but she says they're worth your price. There was a set of six—at a hundred dollars a chair. I brought a carter along to take them. I'll just make out my check, Mr. Samuels, if you'll see that the carter gets the chairs into the truck without doing them any harm."

The carter was just carrying the first of the chairs out of the shop and Fred was beginning the signature of his check when a very pretty, obviously excited young woman burst into the little shop.

"Mr. Samuels," said the girl, "I've decided I don't want to sell the chairs. Here is the six dollars that you said they were worth. I'll take them back in the station wagon with me."

"But what is sold is sold," said Mr. Samuels suavely. "That is only fair, and even if I would let you have them back, it is too late. I have already sold them to this gentleman here."

"Oh, but that is outrageous," said the girl. "It was only day before yesterday. They were up in the attic with a lot of other old things and I wanted to clear the place out. I really didn't notice the chairs at the time. Now I have been reading a book on old furniture, and I realize that I want those chairs back again. Six dollars for six chairs—that is outrageous!"

"But you agreed to the price day before yesterday," said Mr. Samuels.

Fred lingered, listening. He was interested in part because the discussion, so heated on one side, focussed around his own newly acquired chairs. Moreover, he was fascinated by the high-spirited young girl.

"But you could not expect me to give up the chairs," Mr. Samuels mildly protested. "I have just this morning sold the lot for six hundred dollars. I have had them only two days and have made five hundred and ninety-four dollars."

"It's outrageous," cried Violet. "I think there ought to be some law to prevent such things." Then, suddenly seeing and recognizing Fred, she appealed to him. "Don't you think it is outrageous?" But before he was ready with his answer Mr. Samuels was ready with his self-defense.

"Look here, Miss Hampton," he said. "Your father sometimes invests in stocks. Well, suppose he buys today stock at fifty and a very little while later it goes up to one hundred—does he sell it back at fifty to the people from whom he bought it?"

Violet Hampton looked a little dismayed. "It doesn't seem like the same sort of thing to me—does it to you—Mr. Sawyer?"

"I'm afraid it does," said Fred Sawyer. "You see, I happen to know that in Mr. Samuel's business there are many losses. Tastes and fashions change in furniture—and he has many thousands of dollars worth of things on hand which he could not get rid of at any price. Yesterday and today he has made good profit—but it only makes up for some of his losses."

Outside the store Fred spoke again to Violet. He told her that if she really wanted the chairs he would give them to her. He valued them because his aunt, who was an expert, told him they were very rare—and he knew they were beautiful. He had bought a little old house on the mountainside and wanted to have it furnished in keeping with its own antiquity.

"Oh, then you are thinking of getting married?" asked Violet.

"On the contrary—that is, I hadn't thought of it until you put the idea in my head. It was going to be just a sort of bachelor's den—but it might do for a honeymoon cottage just as well. But seriously, I would like to do something about the chairs."

"You might ask me over to tea or something to see how they look in their new surroundings," said Violet. "It was a week later that Violet went to have tea at Fred's little house on the hillside with his aunt as chaperone. Fred was motoring her home down the hill after the party."

"I'm really crazy about your little house," she told him. "You have so many wonderful pieces—and to think that those chairs might have been mine."

Fred hesitated for a minute, wondering whether he dared say the words that were in his mind. Then, growing brave, he said, "They still might be yours."

"I don't see how," said Violet. "Well, if we should get to be quite friendly and I should ask you to marry me and you should be foolish enough to accept—and—and—well, you see what I mean."

"I don't suppose you meant that as a proposal," said Violet, "but I really do think we're very congenial, don't you?"

Fred said he hadn't thought about that—and then when they had reached the level road and driving was not difficult, Fred told Violet he loved her. They drove along in contented silence for a while and then Violet thought again of the chairs.

"It does seem a shame, though, that Mr. Samuels made a profit of five hundred and ninety-four dollars," she said.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mr. and Mrs. Noah G. Spangler, of West High street, will be hosts to a number of gentlemen friends to a turkey dinner this evening.

Sunday, February 6, a crowd of 39 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark to remind Mr. Clark that his 46th birthday anniversary had passed the day before. On his approach from a visit to one of the neighbor's home he was greatly surprised to see a number of people in the yard. At 12:30 the most bountiful dinner was served which was well prepared. Following were in attendance: Mr. C. B. Tener, Mrs. H. D. Tener and son, O. H. Tener and son, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tener and son, all of Carroll; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. O'Hara and son, of Baltimore; Mr. L. M. Tener, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Clark and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Tener and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Babb, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Skaggs and family, Miss Elizabeth Boggs, Mrs. Sophia Goldsberry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Clark and family, all of Circleville; and Miss Grace M. Clark, of Columbus. Owing to the bad roads everyone departed in the middle of the afternoon wishing Mr. Clark many more happy anniversaries.

The young Ladies' Bible class of the Reformed church at Stoutsville, held their monthly meeting Tuesday evening, February 1, at the home of Mrs. Virgil Courtright. The following program was given:

Opening Hymn—"Christ's Banner of Love"
Scripture Mrs. Emmitt Crites
Prayer Ruth Lovette
Hymn—"Brighten Some Pathway"
Roll Call—Answered by a quotation from the Bible, paying of dues, Reading of Minutes, Business
Piano Solo Lucile Bolender
Bible Questions Elsie Adams
Song—"Quit You Like Men"
Mizpah benediction

During the social hour delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Virgil Courtright and Mrs. Ray Rife.

Puts Door in Cow's

Stomach for Study

State College, Pa.—Dairy research workers of the agricultural experiment station of Pennsylvania State college have performed a harmless and simple operation on Penstate Homestead Jessie, a pure-bred two-year-old Holstein heifer, to study what goes on inside her stomach.

Jessie suffered no inconvenience from the operation which put a door in her stomach for special vitamin researches to be carried on. In other words, Jessie will continue to be a contented cow.

Experiments conducted by Dr. S. I. Bechdel of the station have shown that a cow fed a ration deficient in vitamin B will produce milk containing this dietary substance, absence of which in the human diet causes beriberi, a nutritional disease resulting in paralysis.

"What is the source of the vitamin?" the scientists queried. "Can it be that a cow has the power to manufacture vitamin B?" So the college asked Dr. R. S. Amadon to make an opening in Jessie's stomach. After the application of local anesthetics the rumen was sewed to the skin of the opening so the two will grow together. When this has occurred, in about a week, a convenient little door will be provided. This will permit the scientist to reach in and get part of Jessie's dinner.

Offers to Build Flyers'

Chapel Near Arlington

Washington.—Permission to erect on Fort Myer military reservation, just opposite the main gate of Arlington national cemetery, a memorial church for use of the Fort Myer garrison and to be dedicated to Americans who fought with the Lafayette escadrille in France, has been asked of the War department by Frederick H. Prince, Boston banker and president of the Union Stock Yards and Junction railways of Chicago.

Mr. Prince lost a son in the World war. He was killed in action while a member of the famous French-American escadrille.

The memorial itself is to cost $500,000 and Mr. Prince plans to put an additional $100,000 into the landscape gardening work about the chapel. Ralph Adams Cram of Boston has been selected as architect.
